Pi Delta Epsilon's National Convention Opens Today

Announce Candidates Eligible For Election to Student Council

Thirty-one Students Approved By Council For Nominations; Elections Take Place April 28-29; Much Competition Expected

Thirty-one students have been approved by the Student Council as eligible for election to that body, according to the first official announcements made last night. Elections will be held April 28 and 29 in the University Gymnasium and at the Medical School.

Petitions of the eligible candidates were checked by the Council's election committee, according to the requirements recently set up. All candidates are enrolled in the department they seek to represent, and will positively be in that department next year. Good academic standing and the completion of at least 15 semester hours at the time of nomination are further requirements. All petitions were signed by five per cent of the students in the department.

Many of the candidates have definite programs for future Student Council activity, on which they hope to be elected, and the contest is expected to be a heated one where there are more nominees than positions open.

Candidates Listed

The list of candidates and number to be elected in each school is as follows:

Junior College (three representatives): Betty O'Connell, Margaret Maxwell, and Martha Sotter.

Columbian (two representatives): Catherine Frichard, Dorothy Niess, Ruth Warren, Helen Swick.

Law School (two representatives): Charles Moran Goetz, Elton Billings, William Hanback, William Keller, D. J. Goode.

Pharmacy School (one representative): Chester Chamberlain, H. Milton Butler.

School of Government (one representative): J. George Wenzel, Dorothy Heffebower.

Library Science (one representative): Kathleen Watkins, Dorothy Bates.

Fine Arts Division (one representative): Betsy Garrett, Loren L. Murray.

Medical School (one representative): Samuel Danno, Paul H. Case.

School of Engineering (one representative): H. Valpeau Darling.

School of Education (one representative): Anita Dunlap, Lethama De Shazo, Wayne Chambers, Edith Grosvenor.

Van Vleck Publishes New Book on Aliens

Edition Is Result of Much Study on Part of Dean of Law School

"The Administrative Control of Aliens," is the title of a newly published book by William C. Van Vleck, Dean of the George Washington University Law School. The book, which is now in the Law School Library, is a discussion of the way in which aliens are handled by the Federal Government, through the Bureau of Immigration.

Dean Van Vleck, in making his study, examined five hundred cases of exclusion and five hundred of deportation, and observed the administrative process in one of the largest ports of entry and in the office of the Department of Labor at Washington.

Women Students Extended Invitation to Tea Friday

All George Washington women are extended an invitation to attend the tea to be given by the women of the University at Lambie House, Friday, April 15, from three to five o'clock. Women of the faculty will be guests of honor at this tea, which is to inaugurate a tea service given to the University women by the Y. W. C. A. Wives of deans and division heads will also be invited.

The committee in charge of arrangements is made up of the following: Mrs. Vinnie Barrows, Mary Louise Braselton, Helen Swick, Mildred Burnham, Kathleen Watkins, Louise Wright, Marian Zeigler, and Elizabeth Rees.

The Student Council announces a meeting Thursday April 14, in Building K-11, at 7:10 p. m., of all candidates for the coming Student Council election.

Early Organization Entries for Booths Receive Preference

Grand Carnival Sponsored by Council Enlists Aid of Campus Groups

Preparations for the Grand Carnival to be given the first week in May under the auspices of the Student Council, have reached definite proportions under the direction of Louis Malkus.

As was outlined in a previous Hatchet, and also in a letter submitted to each organization on the Campus, the Council is enlisting the aid of every group officially recognized by the Student Life Committee. Each one of the various side-shows, booths, etc., as well as the vaudeville will be sponsored by an individual organization, each vying with the other to put on the best performance. Entries first received will be given preference.

Mr. Malkus or a member of his staff will be on the second floor of Building M, every day from 4:30 to 5 p. m. to assist those who desire to make arrangements to enter a booth, side show or attraction of any sort, and will be prepared to furnish complete information on any phase of the undertaking.

Will Furnish Carpenters
Carpenters will be furnished to assist the groups in erecting booths, etc. Expenses for material may be advanced by the organization and deducted from the proceeds. The booths and side shows will be located in the College Yard, weather permitting, and it is suggested that the choice locations will go to the first applicants. Unique lighting effects, and attractive arrangement of plots, will transpire the yard into a carnival scene which will long be remembered. Dancing will be held in Corcoran Hall, with the gym turned over to athletic exhibitions, etc.

The vaudeville will be a feature of the Carnival with prizes for the best performances. Prizes will also be awarded for the most attractive booth and the best side show.

Further plans will be announced at an early date.

Glee Club Appears Before Local Group

In one of its most important programs this year, the George Washington University Men's Glee Club appeared before a large audience at the University Club on Thursday evening, April 7.

The full-length program, which was well received, included about twelve of the club's best numbers. The first group of songs consisted of "Prayer of Thanksgiving," by Kremer; "Send Out Thy Light," by Klein; "Lo, How A Rose E'er Blooming," by Praetorius, and Wagner's "Pilgrim's Chorus."

After three songs by Robert W. Cushman, baritone soloist, the club gave a group of its lighter numbers, among them being "Old King Cole," by Standish; "The Merry Frogs," by Spenser, and "Old Man River."

Mrs. Grace Bable Harmon, club accompanist, in two of her always popular pianoliques, preceded the third group of songs by the club.

As a special feature of the evening, the Women's Glee Club joined with the men in singing five songs, including those used by the combined clubs in their recent successful appearance at the Fox Theatre.

Architects to Hear Ely Jacques Kahn

Outstanding Architect to Speak Before Fine Arts Fraternity, April 21

Ely Jacques Kahn, one of New York's leading architects, will be the guest speaker at a banquet to be given by the Scarab Fraternity of the Division of Fine Arts, which will be held Thursday, April 21, at the Mayflower Hotel.

Kahn, who has been named as one of the three most outstanding architects of America in a recent article written for a current architectural magazine. At the present time he is the most consulted architect in New York City. He is the director of the Beaux Art Institute of Design which is composed of the leading architectural schools of the country, and of which the George Washington University Architectural School is a member. Mr. Kahn has shown a great interest in education through his work with the Beaux Art Institute where he has emphasized the practical phases of architecture as well as the beauty of design. He was educated both in this country and abroad, completing his studies at the Ecole de Beaux Art in Paris.

The program for the banquet is being arranged by E. R. Spano, M. G. Peter, and C. H. Jumper of the Scarab fraternity. Many prominent architects of Washington as well as alumnae of the Division of Fine Arts will attend. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the Scarab fraternity, or from Robert Boudinot, secretary to the Director of the Division of Fine Arts.

Cue and Curtain Club to Produce Royall Tyler's First American Play

Wardman Park to be Scene of Presentation Which Will Feature in Its Cast Many Prominent Campus Thespians of Former Productions

University and city-wide interest is greeting the efforts being expended by Cue and Curtain on Royall Tyler's "The Contrast," the first American play, which the club will produce at Wardman Park Theater Friday and Saturday evenings, April 29 and 30.

Here is a singular play, an authentic document of eighteenth century manners, the work of a contemporary whose insight into the characteristics of colonial times makes it a comedy of genuine worth even today. Its particular appropriateness during the year 1932 is attested by the fact, the George Washington Bicentennial Commission has given the Cue and Curtain offering its blessing.

Columbian Women, too, have expressed enthusiasm for the idea that the University named for the first President of the United States should sponsor as a contribution to the program of the Bicentennial Commission, of which President Cloyd H. Marvin is chairman, a play for the production of which George Washington was partly responsible.

"The Contrast" is a comedy of errors with a charm making it worthy to be mentioned in the same breath with Sheridan's "School for Scandal," embodying the aims and graces of the colonial period. The English Depart-

Model Initiation Will Induct Ten Scribes Into Press Society

Prominent Hatchet and Cherry Tree Staff Members Honored by Fraternity

Ten prominent George Washington campus journalists will be inducted into Pi Delta Epsilon, national honorary collegiate journalism fraternity, tomorrow evening at the Mayflower Hotel at the official banquet of the writers convention which opens here today.

C. Manley Fesler, Lester M. Gates, Leo David, John T. Vivian, John T. Madigan, Gordon V. Potter, Samuel B. Detweiler, Wilbur McNallan, John Walstrom, and Roger Marquis are the neophytes.

Fesler, who is probably the most prominent of the pledges is a member of the board of editors of the Hatchet and was publicity chairman of the Cherry Tree. Lester M. Gates is business manager of the Hatchet and was formerly advertising manager of that publication. Leo David has been an associate editor of the Hatchet for the past year and has held the position of copy editor during most of that time.

Vivian Assistant Hatchet Editor
John T. Madigan, assistant editor of the Hatchet this year and served on the sports staff of the Cherry Tree last year. John T. Madigan, is an assistant editor of the Hatchet and also served on the sports staff of the Cherry Tree last year.

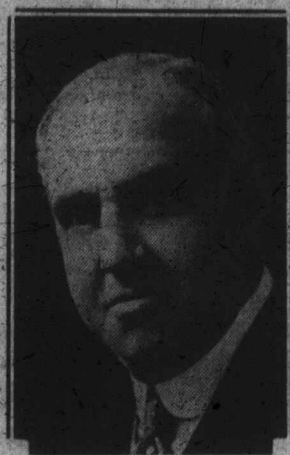

Gordon V. Potter is assistant editor of The Hatchet and has been the author of the Sport Axe column during the past year. Samuel B. Detweiler also holds the position of assistant editor. Wilbur McNallan has been senior reporter on the Hatchet for two years. As fraternities editor of the Cherry Tree, John Walstrom served two years and Roger Marquis has been with the business staff of the Hatchet for the same length of time.

Journalism Dinner Features Speakers

Lyon, Wile, Well-Known Writers to Address Pi Delta Epsilon

The outstanding feature of the Pi Delta Epsilon Banquet to be given at the Mayflower Hotel, Wednesday evening, April 13, will be the addresses to be delivered by Gideon Allen Lyon, and Frederic William Wile, all prominent in the journalistic field.

Fredrick William Wile, a radio political broadcaster, author, and newspaper correspondent was born Nov. 30, 1873, at La Porte, Indiana. He was educated at Notre Dame University, getting an honorary L.L.D. degree from there in 1924. He is among other things, a member of the Cosmos Club, The National Press Club, The Garrick Club (London) and an honorary member of the George Washington chapter of Pi Delta Epsilon.

He began newspaper work on the Chicago Record in 1898, reporting the World War from London as a special correspondent. He was appointed Berlin correspondent of the Chicago Daily News in 1901, and was engaged by Lord Northcliffe in 1908 as chief correspondent in Germany of the London Daily Mail and affiliated newspapers at the same time being Berlin Correspondent of the New York Times. He specialized during eight years preceding the World War in reporting German naval, military and air plans. He was assaulted by the Berlin Mob and arrested on a charge of espionage August 4, 1914, and was released on demand of Ambassador Gerard and was permitted to leave Germany in the

Economist to Speak Before Liberal Club

"Agricultural and Consumer's Cooperatives" will be the subject of a lecture to be given by Dr. Hermine Rabinowitz before the Liberal Club at a meeting to be held Friday, April 15, at 8:15 p. m. in W-17. Dr. Rabinowitz who received her Ph.D. degree from Heidelberg in 1923, is an authority upon the subject of cooperation and is an expert of the League of Nations International Labor Office research staff. She is the author of numerous economic papers, many appearing in the "International Labor Office Monthly" and is also the author of a book entitled, "The Cooperative Movement in Russia."

Dr. Rabinowitz has been with the International Labor Office in Geneva, Switzerland, since 1925, gathering information and statistics on cooperation from all nations of the world.

Her talk should be of interest to all students of economics since she will approach her subject from a scientific and economic angle.

Official Convention Banquet Scheduled Tomorrow Evening

Catholic University and Maryland Chapters Act as Co-Hosts for Meeting

The annual grand convention of Pi Delta Epsilon, national honorary collegiate journalism fraternity, will open here today with the George Washington chapter as the principal host. Between 40 and 50 delegates from every part of the United States, as well as the national officers of the fraternity, are expected to attend. They will be guests at the George Washington fraternity houses during their stay.

The official convention banquet tomorrow evening at the Mayflower Hotel will be the highlight of an interesting and crowded three day program arranged by the joint hosts, the George Washington, Catholic University and University of Maryland chapters.

Frederic William Wile, famous political writer, Gideon A. Lyon, associate editor of the Washington Post, will make addresses at this banquet.

The model initiation of ten men prominent in campus journalism recently pledged to the fraternity will be another feature of the banquet.

Marvin Welcomes Delegates

The convention will be opened this evening by Doctor Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the University, who will extend the official welcome of the University at a smoker to be held at the S. A. E. house at which the delegates will be guests.

Joseph C. Patty, national president of Pi Delta Epsilon, a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology who attended George Washington University in 1918-19, will speak on behalf of the fraternity.

Henry Gratton Doyle, dean of the Junior College, and grand secretary of the fraternity, will be another

Students Will Debate On Council Elections

Speakers' Congress Will Sponsor Discussion of Interesting Topic

The question, "Resolved: That the members of the Student Council should be elected from the student body as a whole rather than from separate colleges of the University," will be the subject of a debate of the Speakers' Congress, on Monday, April 18, at 2 p. m. in Corcoran Hall 33.

The officers of the organization extend to all students an invitation to attend. In view of the coming elections to the Student Council, this topic is a most timely one which should appeal to a great many University students.

At the last meeting of the Congress, it was voted to go on record as favoring Capitalism, following speeches by Clara Critchfield and John G. Barber on the subject of "Capitalism Versus Socialism." New members elected to the Congress are Grant Van Derrmark, William Lipscomb, Terrill Brazelton, and Frederick Joss.

Creative Poetry Society Will Meet Friday Night

The Creative Poetry Society, which has recently become affiliated with the College Poetry Society, the junior branch of the Poetry Society of America, will meet Friday evening at 8:15 at the Lambie House.

The George Washington chapter had its first meeting at the Kennedy-Warren on March 23. Mrs. Mitchell Dreese presided. Mrs. Muna Lee of the National Woman's Party and a well known poet, at one time an associate editor of "Poetry: A Magazine of Verse," was the guest of honor. She read a number of her poems, some of which are to appear in a forthcoming volume.

WASHINGTON, D. C., TUESDAY, APRIL 12, 1932

Welcome Pi Delta Epsilon

It is fitting that Pi Delta Epsilon should convene in Washington, the "news center" of the world and the base for press correspondents from every part of our country and practically every nation in the world. The University Hatchet is glad of the opportunity to show this group of student journalists some of the many points of interest in the nation's capital and the vast resources it holds open to members of their chosen profession.

College journalism in George Washington, and certainly in many other schools, is a matter of experiments. Ideas of great value to the profession may originate in the minds of undergraduates and prove their merit in the columns of college publications. This is commendable and should be encouraged. Any gathering of the quality of a Pi Delta Epsilon convention must abound with the results of many experiments and should offer much not only to collegiate newspapermen but to the field of journalism in general. We expect big things of this convention and stand more than ready to cooperate with Pi Delta Epsilon and the individual delegates in every way possible.

Student Council Candidates

Elsewhere in this issue of The Hatchet appears the names of the 31 students who have been approved by the Student Council as eligible for election to membership in that organization.

Presumably these candidates are well known by the student body in the schools they seek to represent. Actually they may or may not be so well known and certainly not much has been forthcoming in the way of public utterances of the candidates. To date The Hatchet has received communications from two aspirants to the Council and these have been passed on to the student body. There should be more, many more!

The actions and decisions of the Student Council are affecting life at George Washington more and more as the internal organization of the group progresses—and rightly so. We must have leadership and naturally expect to look to the Council for it. And why not? Is it not the greatest honor within the power of the student body to confer? Therefore, it is proper that we inquire into the qualifications of the people we select for these positions. It is not only our right but it becomes our duty to be sure that the members of next year's Student Council be those students who are best equipped to cope with the problems which we know from experience are bound to arise.

The Case of Reed Harris

It seems to us unfortunate that events similar to the recent Columbia Spectator scandal periodically make necessary the reopening of the old question of freedom of the collegiate press.

College newspapers depend upon undergraduates for their existence. True, they often are financed almost entirely by the institution they represent, but this does not alter the fact that they circulate among the students who, in turn, supply the "life blood" of the institution.

The fact of their enrollment in the student body of a given university is proof that the personnel of collegiate publications are fundamentally in accord with the administration of that particular school. If, in their opinion, certain policies could be altered to the advantage of the majority of the students, they would be poor supporters of their Alma Mater if they did not say so. And no university should boast of the fact that its students did not have the courage of their convictions.

PROM HIGHLIGHTS II.

Women, more women, and a few men, flowers, lights, noise, music, etc., etc. As a dance, Proms are better than interfraternity, although as a spectacle—a Prom of Proms, as 'twere—it fell far short. . . . From the feminine attire we would say that a lot of charge accounts were opened last week. It might be a good idea to hold a prom next week to see how many dresses are returned for non-payment of bills. . . . In spite of the depression, orchids and gardenias were numerous. . . . Eller and Burnham featured this new popular "Wake me early, mother, for I'm to be queen of the May" style. . . . Professor Courtland Baker displayed an amazing knowledge of the intricacies of the adagio. . . . Among other talented dancers who were present was Punch Carnes, who did an exhibition tap dance for no good reason. . . . Did anybody see Charlie Touchton? . . . The Doyles and Bements were there. . . . Just to be different, Eleanor Spencer wore a blue hat. Fealer suggests a windmill to go with the hat, which took the place of that shouder expose at the last Prom. . . . Judging from the amount of time the lights were out, it might have been just another Delt dance. . . . Sieglist must have spent the weekend with Schaub. . . . The wind blew and out-popped the Petticoat in the hands of Vivian, Hanback, and Potter, Harrington's myrmidons of Gamma Eta Zeta, who demonstrated their sales appeal like this: "Oh, girls, won't you please buy one?" . . . This rabid humor sheet which caused Molyneux to have hysterics, received only a snort from our learned "Hatchet Man," Win Weitzel. We wonder why? . . . The K. D.'s were represented by their charming house mother. . . . Kriemelmeyer goes in for big business—takes all the brothers' orders for flowers and sends their dates "lousy" gardenias—but his femme drew six "whole" gardenias (commission). . . . Alice Buell turned in her corsage of sweet peas, and put up the extra two dollars to get one of roses and lilies of the valley. . . . Now we really believe that Louise Berryman has a husband. . . . Dean and Mrs. Van Vleck were there. . . . Wonder what the K. A.'s and their dates were doing behind the orchestra pit at intervals during the evening? . . . Bacon wore that seductive garment that absolutely requires an upright position for sitting down. . . . The orchestra did a pretty fine piece of work—especially with that "Rascal" number. . . . Things to be thankful for: There was no Grand March, and Weiss did not take a picture. . . . And with this comes our fervid wish that we shall prom no more this year. Resqueat in pace. (Just to carry out the Latin motif.)

FIRST PRIZE

This is our choice as the best joke in either Raspberry or Petticoat this year. What do you think?
Corwin Lockwood: "Pardon me, Mrs. Barrows, but that would never have happened if you hadn't stepped between me and the spittoon."

OTHER INANITIES

Burnham missed first chance for publicity in four years when she arrived just two minutes too late for the Phi Pi Epsilon picture last week. . . . After waiting two hours to see the George Washington Band march in the Army Day parade, we found out that not even the spirit of good old George could make our tooters step after the Howard R. O. T. C. units and before the high school cadets, who, incidentally, had one of the best bands in the parade. . . . We nominate Hazen Shea for one of Horatio Alger's heroes in a story which could be called, "How I Rose in the Drama Club" or "From Electrician to Leading Man." . . . One of our deans must have been seized by spring gardening fever from the looks of our cherished tennis court these days. . . . No, our coeds were not setting a new style in class attire when they appeared on the campus at five o'clock in evening dresses. They merely had to usher at the Columbian Women's Banquet, and the Chevy Chase Club is a long ways out. . . . Prominent social highlight, Harry Burlingame, returns to Washington after an eight months' sojourn in Budapest. Page Jean Flynn. . . . Herzog had a birthday Sunday, but like all big shots, he keeps his age a secret. . . . It's going to be a lucky day for an unlucky number of Pi Delt pledges when they ride the goat at the convention this week. . . . Wanted: A number of attractive young women to amuse visiting scribes. Submit photos and qualifications to Weitzel sooner if not quicker. . . . Jean Harlow would prefer a nice quiet university like George Washington. Well, Jeanie, take it from Rollo and visit one of these W. A. A. elections before you register. . . . The only questionable story told at the Engineer's Banquet was told by President Marvin. . . . Well, whether it's team time, bed time, or both, we can't tell, since we just returned home from the St. George's Village Party. But, anyway, au revoir and good luck till next week.

To the Students in the School of Government:

The Student Council has received much unmerited criticism, but it must be remembered that it is just emerging from its adolescent stage. Formerly the representatives have been elected by a minority of the student body in the form of fraternity-sorority line-ups. While this method has not been the means of electing unworthy or disinterested candidates, it has tended to decrease the interest of the student body at large. It has also made a large number of the students feel as though they had no representation, thereby keeping from the Council certain questions that might have helped the University. This has also caused much of the apparent failure of the Student Council to provide remedies.

The Council desires that the student body take a more active and interested part in the elections this year. Consequently, it did not mention disqualification of candidates backed by party line-ups, as was the case last year. However, the object here is not to approve fraternity-sorority line-ups as such, but to encourage parties emanating from the issues at hand.

There is no reason why there should not be the same whole-hearted participation in these elections at George Washington as at other universities. If the student body, after familiarizing itself with the platforms of the candidates, votes according to the merit of the policies advocated, the Student Council so elected will more effectively carry out the desires of the students.

It is with the interests of all my fellow-students of the School of Government in mind, that I have elected to offer my services as your representative. I shall appreciate your support in the coming elections, and should I be elected, your advice for any improvements next year.

DOROTHY M. HEFLEBOWER.

Bartering at Beloit

Meat, potatoes, eggs, fruit, chickens and vegetables are acceptable at Beloit College in lieu of registration fees. The faculty announcement of the return to barter explained that it was one measure to combat the dolt.

Love, intoxication, and faculty intelligence are causes for freshmen flunking out of college, according to the Dean of the University of Nebraska.

A senior at Georgia Tech took and passed a course, and then discovered that he had taken and passed the same course, in the same room, with the same professor, before.

the effect that 1,500 students engage in "the most famous riot" in the history of Columbia University, it would seem that at least there must be something to say on both sides of the question. The Hatchet does not necessarily subscribe to the "discourtesies, innuendoes, and misrepresentations" of Reed Harris in the Columbia Spectator. We are in no position to render judgment upon the soundness of his argument. What seems to us to be the fallacy of the whole affair is the fact that he is presumed to be unfit, not only to fill an editorial position, but to be even a student of Columbia University—and this because he gave voice to his opinions which he believed to be in the best interest of that institution.

Columbia University Expels Editor; Riots By Students Follow

(Reprinted from Columbia Spectator, Issue of April 4.)
(By Special Permission)

A mass meeting to protest against the expulsion from the college of Reed Harris, '32, editor-in-chief of Spectator, whose registration was cancelled at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon by Dean Herbert E. Hawkes, will be held at noon today on the Library steps, it was announced yesterday by "a committee of conservative students" who requested that their names be withheld "to protect them from academic discipline."

The Social Problems Club, which had originally scheduled a meeting for noon "to consider the action of the administration in the case of Reed Harris," announced yesterday that the meeting would be postponed in order to allow the club members to cooperate in the mass meeting on the library steps.

Harris said yesterday that he would "consult" with the American Civil Liberties Union, which offered on Saturday to aid him in securing reinstatement. They offered to provide lawyers to aid the expelled editor. Three lawyers, whose names were withheld, have also offered their aid. Two of the attorneys are Columbia graduates.

The expulsion of Harris came suddenly less than two hours after the new managing board of Spectator had been chosen. The new board was to be announced late Friday afternoon, but although the members had been chosen, announcement of the election was indefinitely postponed after the notice of expulsion.

The first step in the cancellation of Harris' registration came Thursday afternoon when Dean Hawkes ordered the Spectator to send him by noon Friday a written explanation of a story in Thursday's issue of Spectator concerning the investigation of the John Jay Dining Room and Grill.

In his explanation to the Dean, Harris wrote in part as follows:—
"The material contained in that statement was based on letters from John Jay student waiters and managers written to Spectator in the Spring of last year. The statement of those waiters and student managers were never refuted. Therefore we were within our rights in publishing an historical resume of the situation, the sentence in question. The letter making the quoted statement is in our possession, is marked confidential, and cannot be released. It is to be noted that the statements first appeared before I took over the editorship of the paper."

Dean Receives Statement Friday
The statement reached the Dean's office at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. At that time the managing board was in session and had just completed the election of the new staff which was to take office with Monday's edition.

A short time after the statement reached the Dean he notified Harris, Donald D. Ross, '32, editorial associate, and Lamoyne A. Jones, '32, managing editor, to appear in his office at 3 o'clock.

The Dean read a short quotation from Harris' explanatory statement and then told the committee, according to Harris:

"I saw President Butler this noon and he agreed that Harris should be disciplined, but he cautioned me to give the appearance of holding a hearing."

Butler Denies Knowledge of Matter
When questioned about the matter by a Herald-Tribune reporter Saturday evening, President Butler appeared to be surprised and asked to have the question repeated.

"Would you make some statement on the expulsion of Harris?"

"Of whom?" Dr. Butler asked.

"Harris—Reed Harris, editor of Spectator."

"Oh, I don't know anything about that," Dr. Butler replied. "That hasn't come to me at all."

The Civil Liberties Union made its offer of support Saturday through Raymond L. Wise, an attorney for the organization and a graduate of Columbia Class of 1917.

The Union also issued a statement which said:—"No student should be dismissed for such a cause without a hearing."

Mr. Wise amplified the organization's position yesterday in a statement in which he said:—"They [the University administration] have contracted to give Harris an education for a certain amount of money. Before the University can break that contract there are certain things by law they are required to do. Apparently, from the reports, the University has failed to give Harris a fair hearing."

The executive committee of the Columbia Chapter of the League for Industrial Democracy yesterday adopted the following resolution.

"We believe that the expulsion of Reed Harris from Columbia College because of items appearing in Spectator is a clear violation of the principle of academic freedom."

Lonely Hearts Club

What is sometimes known as "Lonely Hearts Club" but officially designated as the "Dating Bureau" is in operation at the University of Wisconsin. The young ladies of Barnard Hall, and the young men of Tripp Hall, through their respective social chairwoman and chairman, are paired off in some fashion. On certain days half of the men are guests of the coeds at Barnard Hall, while the other half entertain the coeds at dinner at the men's hall. The experiment will be watched with interest, but final endorsement must be withheld.

Letters to Editor

To the Editor:

Cognizant with the expulsion of Reed Harris, the former crusading editor of The Columbia Spectator, again arises the questions of defining radicalism and "freedom of the press" in the college news sheets.

Dean Herbert E. Hawkes, who did the expelling with the approval of President Nicholas Murray Butler, issued the following statement as official explanation of the act: "Material published in The Columbia Spectator during the past few days is a climax to a long series of discourtesies, innuendoes and misrepresentations which have appeared in this paper during the past academic year and called for disciplinary action." It seems a bit incongruous that an editor of the radical tendencies, such as Harris possessed, would publish articles and editorials denouncing certain phases of university administration without adequate facts. Knowing that his diatribes were of innovative nature and a bit extreme in their forcefulness, he would certainly have investigated the situations and either provided or made ready to provide proof for his assertions.

Youth is radical. That expression is axiomatic and no one will dispute the truth of its meaning. However, since the Great War the radicalism of American youth has been traveling the wrong road.

The popular conception of American college youth is well known. A scatter-brained youth, possibly in a racoon coat, a gin bottle on his hip, who can think of nothing but necking, drinking, and rah, rah, rah!

This of course is the extreme, but if toned down a bit it is essentially true. Therefore Reed Harris' intense interest and his crusading policies, to say nothing of the students' strike which resulted from his expulsion, should be treasured not only by Columbia University students but by undergraduates all over the United States as an exhibition of liberal thought on the part of students.

Such action as the Columbia campus saw a few weeks ago is not unusual on the European university campuses, for in the old country if public tyranny is to be downed, it is the students . . . and they are "students" in the real sense of the word . . . who initiate its downfall.

Free speech in collegiate newspapers has no control from the faculty has been a moot question for a number of years and incidents such as the Harris expulsion serve to bring this most important phase of journalism to the fore. Harris in commenting upon his demise said: "Freedom of expression when it runs contrary to the administrative policy of the University is non-existent."—Gordon V. Potter.

Student Council Elections

The recent editorial suggestion of The Hatchet, that for elections to the Student Council there should be provided some system "akin to primaries of political machinery" would seem to indicate a desire to plunge completely these elections into hopeless political bickering. Primaries imply organized parties and formulated platforms. In our organization both are conspicuously absent and quite properly so. A candidate should be elected on individual merit rather than party affiliations. The only serious defect in the present arrangement is, that a candidate may be elected on a bare plurality, far short of a majority. A fairer suggestion would be to add to the present regulations for the election of Student Council members the proviso that, should no candidate receive a majority of the votes cast, a second election should be held in which the two candidates receiving the greatest number of votes should be balloted upon. This would insure, after proper publicity, the selection of the choice of the majority of those interested in the balloting.

Yours very truly,
J. GEORGE WENZEL.

El Club Espanol to Hear

Talk on Touring Mexico

By Dr. Enrique Jimenez

Thursday at 8 p. m. Dr. Enrique Jimenez, secretary to the Mexican Ambassador, will address the members of El Club Espanol in Corcoran Hall, Room 27. Dr. Jimenez will speak on "What a Tourist Sees on an Eight Day Tour of Mexico" and will illustrate his lecture with motion pictures. He will also speak on "The Educational System of Mexico."

Dr. Jimenez attended the University of Minnesota where he received his M. A. degree, and was professor of Spanish Literature there. He is a lawyer, and was previously a professor at the University of Mexico.

Any student interested in hearing Dr. Jimenez is invited to attend the meeting as the guest of El Club Espanol.

Fight Date Depression

Men students at the University of Utah have started agitation for adoption of the "Arizona Plan" for the relief of romantic but financially depressed males. Statisticians at the University of Arizona announced after a survey that a date costs $1.98 on the average and voted that co-eds share the cost on an equality basis. Possibly because the $1.98 had a subconscious bargain appeal, the girls accepted. As an added concession, the men voted that under the equality plan, co-eds could with propriety ask for dates instead of waiting to be asked as in boom times.

Drastic Changes in 1932 Football Code Are Commented Upon by Coach Pixlee

Football Mentor States That the Two Major and One Minor Rule Changes Will Not Alter the Game to Any Appreciable Extent

Sometime ago the National Football Rules Committee made some rather drastic changes in the football code for the season of 1932. The most popular inter-collegiate game today seemed to be doomed to rather drastic changes, so the coaches and officials from all over the continent met to discuss the pros and cons of the game.

The two major rule changes brought out during the past year pertain to the use of the hands by linemen, and the change of the kick-off rule. A third rule change that will effect the game somewhat, although not a drastic change, was the change of the rule covering substitutions.

In commenting on these rules Coach Pixlee stated, "I am certain that the new rule pertaining to the use of the hands by linemen will not be strictly enforced. I do expect to see striking of offensive linemen by defensive linemen with the heel of the hand and fore-arm ruled against, but I do not expect to see the use of the hands or arms by the defense linemen ruled against unless this use is in the nature of striking his opponent. If the new hand and arm rule is enforced literally, it will make a vast difference in the operation of the football teams. This will give a tremendous advantage to the offensive team, and under this new rule, if strictly interpreted, we may expect to see a great deal of line play, certainly much more than in the past several years. If the rule is not interpreted literally, I do not expect to see the game changed in any appreciable extent."

Says Coaches Want Fair Catch
In regard to the kick-off rule he continued, "My prediction is that most coaches will want their receivers to fair catch the kick in order to protect themselves. Otherwise, we are certain to see a great many more serious accidents from the receiving of the kick-off than we have ever seen before. There seems to be a good deal of sentiment among the coaches to ask for a change of this rule before next fall in order that teams may kick from a tee in the conventional manner." Speaking of the substitution rule he further remarked that, "A good deal of criticism has been brought to bear on this rule, claiming that it gives the coach the opportunity to run the team from the bench. I do not believe this is a serious criticism. The value of running the team from the bench is over-estimated by people who do not thoroughly understand the game. Most coaches agree that this cannot be as successfully done as the legitimate plan of having two or three men on the squad so schooled that the team can be properly handled by them."

Intramural Tennis Entries

Entries are now being received in the athletic office for the intramural tennis tournament, and should be filed by April 13. Due to a lack of available courts, pairings for the tourney have not yet been made.

A handsome trophy, consisting of the figure of a player with racquet in outstretched hand, mounted on a pedestal, will be awarded to the winner of the singles title. A smaller replica of this award will be presented to each member of the winning doubles team.

Intramural Baseball Teams Open Series

Uniforms and Equipment Will Be Distributed by Team Managers

Intramural baseball is due to begin on Friday, April 15, at 3 o'clock when Junior College and Pre-Med are scheduled to play, and not on Thursday as was previously announced by the Athletic Department. The reason for this postponement is the inability of the weather man to get the playing fields in proper condition.

Uniforms will be distributed before game time by the managers of each of the six teams to deserving members of their nines. Necessary equipment for catchers as well as bats and balls will also be given out at this time.

Games are due to start promptly at the time scheduled and teams not ready to play on time will forfeit.

George Washington Golf Team Tryouts Qualify Six Players

Eliminations Closely Contested by Small Field Over Wet Course

Dolph Atherton, Bill Coleman, Jim Suter, and F. M. Thuney, shooting the four lowest scores, respectively, in a field of fifteen candidates will compose the University golf team this season. Shedy and Kendrick, following the winners closely, will be first and second alternates, respectively.

The eliminations played last Friday on East Potomac, courses B and D were closely contested, not more than two strokes separating each of the successful entrants from his nearest competitor. Open to all students of the University, the tournament drew a small field but all of the players put up a sterling game. Winter rules were used in the competition, the men played in threesomes and scores were kept by each individual's opponent.

Frequent showers on already soaked greens and fairways combined to keep the scores comparatively high. The four lowest ranged between 82 and 87 for the eighteen holes. Fair weather and fast fairways later in the spring will undoubtedly lower these marks.

William and Mary will come here April 18 for a match which probably will be played at Indian Springs. The University of Richmond will be the next invader on April 29 and a tentative match with Duke has been scheduled for the following week, May 6.

Intramural Golf Tournament Will Be Run Off This Week

The Intramural Golf Tournament will be held sometime during this week, on the East Potomac Golf Course, according to Max Farrington. The pairings will also be drawn up during the week. Already a number of people have signified their intention of entering the tournament and applications are still being received.

The winner will be awarded a silver trophy, which stands about eight inches high and is the figure of a male golfer mounted on a black onyx base, in the act of teeing off.

SPORT AXE

By GORDON V. POTTER

At last a six-page issue of The Hatchet. The four-page editions are hard on this column. And the paper really needs it, as it is from the "Axe" that the "Chips" fly, not to cast any reflection on the ability of my fellow columnist, the infamous Dick Rollo. This is just a poor attempt at punning.

However, timber for my sportive "Axe" is a bit scarce these spring days; of course there is intramural baseball, interfraternity baseball, the Greeks' track event, and the tennis matches, but what this University needs is a major spring sport. We certainly have potential material in the form of the husky footballers, and perhaps even a few of them have had experience in some one of the spring sports.

The question arises . . . what form of athletics would be the most desirable . . . instantly an answer comes to me and without a bit of hesitation . . . LACROSSE!

As I have often written, lacrosse is rapidly gaining enthusiastic followers all over the country and particularly in the section in which our University is located. University of Maryland, Johns Hopkins, Navy, and St. John's are all rated as having some of the finest lacrosse teams ever turned out. It is these schools which consistently possess superlative lacrosse twelvees that would compete with George Washington. Of course, it would take one or two years to develop a twelve that would be able to hold its own with teams.

But is it not worth the time to foster such a growing sport in a growing University. Certainly in five years' time the lacrosse team would be vying with the football squad for the major interest and perhaps turning in larger gate receipts.

The idea deserves serious thought and, perhaps if I am rather persistent in my small way, and keep pounding out copy about the desirability from all angles of possessing a lacrosse twelve we might get one.

On an all-star five selected from the opponents faced by the Duquesne quint the past season, The Duquesne Duke, student weekly of the Pittsburgh Institution, has placed two players from the ranks of the Buff and Blue varsity basketballers. "Otto" Zahn was placed in one of the guard positions and "Wick" Farrack in one of the forward berths. Evidently our opponents respect the ability of our prize courtmen.

As soon as the sun begins to shine again, the "fraters" will begin oiling their gloves and polishing their spikes, in preparation for that thrilling interfraternity baseball series in which many pitchers are knocked out of their box and strike-outs are a common occurrence.

Another wild conception of my disorderly brain comes to the fore. I shall tone it down a bit and offer it as a suggestion to Coach Pixlee and his cohorts. Briefly, this is the brain storm.

About a month from now the Hellenic thin-clads will be cavorting on the cinder path and upon the greensward in an attempted imitation of their ancestors, the ancient Greeks of classic fame. I suggest one of the coaches cast his weather eye over the group of would-be track and field men, keeping in mind the possibility of developing a Track Team for George Washington University.

We're all Americans and there's nothing we like doing better than getting "Bigger and Better."

Colonial Riflemen Take Fourth Place In National Match

Intercollegiate Contest Is Won by the University of Maryland Team

The National Rifle Association has announced the results of the annual women's intercollegiate rifle match. First place was won by the University of Maryland with a score of 2909 out of a possible 3000 points. The University of Missouri came second, and the University of Washington placed third. Both of these teams scored 2887 points. The George Washington University team won fourth place, having a score of 2847.

The title of "Intercollegiate Champions" has been won every year by either the George Washington team or the Maryland team. Maryland was awarded this title the first year, George Washington kept it for the next four years, and Maryland won it again last year and this year.

In a telegraphic match recently shot between the two teams, the Colonial sharpshooters were victorious, the scores being 497 to 404. The "G. W. iten" also defeated the University of Washington this year. They will shoot against the University of Missouri sometime this month and a victory will mean that they will have defeated all teams placing above them in the N. R. A. match this year.

Baseball Will Begin For Greeks Sunday

Adverse Weather Conditions Delay Annual Interfraternity Series

The Interfraternity baseball series will not start until Sunday, April 17, due to rainy weather and wet diamonds. The opening game was deferred a week but teams scheduled to play last week will again be ready to start the festivities this Sunday.

Cold weather has rendered the playing fields on both the Elipse and the Monument grounds non-playable, and according to the director of the Public Buildings and Public Parks, the diamonds were not to be opened for play until April 15. Games will be played every Sunday from April 17 until May 15 unless managers of teams, unable to play on those dates, agree on some arbitrary time.

Seventeenth Annual Catholic Conference Will Convene Here

Representatives from Middle Atlantic Province to Meet at Mayflower

More than two hundred delegates and visitors will assemble as representatives of the 21 College Catholic Clubs, which comprise the membership of the Middle Atlantic Province of the Federation of College Catholic Clubs, at the seventeenth annual convention of the Province organization, to convene at the Mayflower Hotel April 29, 30, and May 1. While in Washington the delegates will be guests of the Newman Club of George Washington University, which organization is sponsoring the convention.

The convention will bring to Washington students from colleges and universities located in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North and South Carolina, and Georgia, and will bring together the largest gathering of representatives of College Catholic Clubs ever assembled in the Middle Atlantic Province. Thomas Lynch, president of the Federation of College Catholic Clubs, will attend from New York and will be accompanied by a delegation of students from New York and Boston. The delegations from New York and Boston will attend as visitors only, and not as representatives, as the schools located there are in the New York and New England provinces, respectively.

Among the patrons for this event are the Royal Italian Ambassador, and Nobil Donna Antonietta de Martino; the Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Dehuchi; the Ambassador of Great Britain and Lady Lindsay; the Ambassador of Brazil and Mme. De Lima Silva; the Minister of Austria and Mme. Prochlik; the Minister of Guatemala and Senora de Recinos; the Minister of the Irish Free State and Mrs. MacWhite; the Minister of Yugoslavia, Dr. Leonide Pitamic; the Minister of Venezuela and Senora de Arce; the Minister of Colombia and Senora Dona Ester de Lozano; Honorable

WHO'S WHO ON THE CAMPUS

TED RINEHART

While his one absorbing interest since coming to Washington from Tulsa, Oklahoma, has been in the study of law, Ted has been active outside his chosen field at George Washington.

He represents the Law School in the Student Council. He has worked for the organization of a University band, complete revision of the student government constitution and by-laws, and is chairman of the committee in charge of the All-University Carnival. His extra-curricular efforts have been directed toward advancing the prestige of the Student Council.

He received his undergraduate training in Oklahoma and Pennsylvania. While at Oklahoma State, he served in the President's Office, was on varsity debate, president of the Junior Class, Student Senate, and Ruf Nex.

His social fraternity is Kappa Alpha Order (Southern). His professional fraternity is Phi Delta Phi (Legal).

able Wendell Phillips Stafford; Dr. and Mrs. William Allen Wilbur; Dr. Charles Clinton Swisher; Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Gans; Mrs. Moncure Burke; Miss Marie M. Ready, and the Gibbons Club of William and Mary College.

The Newman Club of George Washington University will be host for the Washington Convention, and the opening address of welcome to visiting delegates will be given by the Provost of George Washington University, Dr. William Allen Wilbur. The Convention will be presided over by the Chairman of the Middle Atlantic Province, Joseph O'Connor, who is a recent graduate of the George Washington University School of Law and a past President of the George Washington Newman Club.

Problems to Be Studied

Among the noted lecturers on the educational program will be the Rev. Ignatius Smith, O. P., of the Catholic University of America, who will deliver the principal address. Rev. Dr. John W. Keogh, of the University of Pennsylvania, chaplain of the Middle Atlantic Province, will be in charge of the religious discussion. Conferences will be devoted to studies of the problems affecting the younger members of society in university life, and designed to promote in them the ideals of Catholic faith and good citizenship.

An elaborate program of social events is planned for the entertainment of delegates and guests attending, consisting of a formal reception and ball in the Chinese room of the Mayflower Hotel, and visits to Mount Vernon and the Franciscan Monastery at Brookland together with other features of historic value in connection with the George Washington Bicentennial Celebration.

The Convention will close Sunday, May 1, with a Corporate Communion Mass at St. Patrick's Church, which will be celebrated by the Rev. Dr. John Keating Cartwright, chaplain of the Newman Club of George Washington University. Following the Mass, breakfast will be served at the Mayflower Hotel, at which the convention will be addressed by Major General Paul B. Malone, commanding general of the Third Corps Area of the United States Army.

Women's Intramural Court Games Played

PI Beta Phi and Colonial Campus Club Play in Finals Wednesday

A majority of the preliminary games in the post-season basketball tournament sponsored by the women's intramural organization were played off during the past week. Seven teams, revealing a wealth of here-to-fore hidden skill with the ball and hoop, met in a series of exciting contests.

Tuesday night Alpha Delta Pi won an easy victory from Kappa Delta with a score of 20-6, while Pi Beta Phi defeated Phi Sigma Sigma 35-21. The following night Pi Phi won a second game from Alpha Epsilon Phi. Chi Omega and the Colonial Campus Club fought a closely contested battle to a 25-23 victory for the Tri-C team.

Thursday night Chi Omega piled up a 30-4 score over Kappa Delta, and on Saturday afternoon the Colonial Campus Club won from Alpha Delta Pi by a count of 11-6.

The remaining games, to be played tonight, are Alpha Delta Pi vs. Chi Omega and Alpha Epsilon Phi vs. Phi Sigma Sigma. The finals of this tournament are scheduled for Wednesday, April 13, at 7 p. m.

Orchestra Makes First Appearance At Dance Tonight

The Student Council dollar dance this evening in Corcoran Hall from 9:30 to 12 o'clock for the benefit of the University band, will feature a new ten-piece orchestra. It is the first appearance of the organization at a dance in Washington. The Council also promises several specialties and novel features.

Delegates who are attending the Pi Delta Epsilon convention at the University today, tomorrow, and Thursday will be guests at the dance.

There will be the usual charge of one dollar with or without a date. Tickets are on sale by all members of the band and by the Student Council. The sale of tickets is limited to 200.

Alpha Lambda Delta Elects New Officers

Jane Edwards Chosen President, Helen Lyon Recording Secretary

Jane Edwards was elected president of Alpha Lambda Delta, honorary scholastic fraternity for freshman women, at a meeting held on Wednesday, April 6, at the Lambie House. Helen Lyon was chosen recording secretary for the coming year, and Adele Meriam courtesy secretary.

This fraternity is composed of women who have attained a scholastic average of at least fifty per cent A and at least fifty per cent B. Bids to the fraternity are sent out in October and are based upon the grades received for the previous semester's courses. All three of the new officers were among those girls recently initiated.

Troubadour Players To Have Celebration

Cast of "Happy Landings" Will Be Entertained at Club Michel

Troubadour night will be celebrated at the Club Michel on Friday night, April 20.

Through the courtesy and cooperation of the management of the Club, the Board of Managers of Troubadours announces that the entire cast of the last show, "Happy Landings," will be entertained as reward for their services in making the show one of the most successful in the history of the organization.

President and Mrs. Marvin, Dr. and Mrs. Bolwell, and several other members of the faculty are to be invited as guests of the Troubadours on this occasion.

For this informal get-together of the Troubadours, the Club Michel has been turned over to the group. An especially elaborate and entertaining show will be presented.

Panhel Prom, Featuring Baxter's Tar Heels, Most Successful in Years

Petticoat Appears During Intermission to Offer Scandal; Popularity of Music Shown by Enthusiasm of Large Group

By DORIS SKINKER

All things combined, the time—Friday night, April 8; the place—the Shoreham Ballroom; and the people—the greater part of the Greek letter affiliates, the Panhellenic Prom proved to be one of the most successful in years. As for the music, anyone who was there will tell you that Jack Baxter and his "Carolina Tarheels" left nothing to be desired in the line of orchestras.

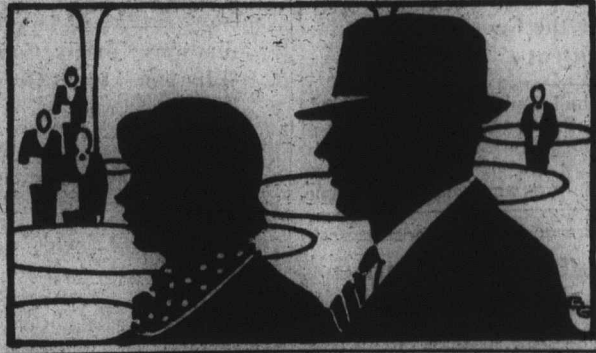

Mrs. Winnie Barrows, director of women's personnel guidance, looked lovely in a gown of pale pink crepe, with beaded shoulder straps. Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle chose a pale blue chiffon for her gown. Mrs. Lowell Ragatz wore an attractive gown of light blue crepe and a corsage of talisman roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

Louise Berryman, present Panhellenic president, wore a white satin evening gown of simple lines, with a bustle of the palest green satin. Her flowers were talisman roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Marion Zeigler, chairman of the Prom Committee, was seen in a flesh chiffon with a narrow blue ribbon at the waist, and an orchid corsage. Cecile Harrington, president of Gamma Eta Zeta, was lovely in white with a corsage of white gardenias. Ruth Warren looked especially well in a frilly pale pink net gown and her flowers were white roses and pink sweet peas. Winnie Beall wore a gown of American Beauty taffeta with a corsage of gardenias. Evelyn Eller was dressed in the popular white chiffon with a corsage of gardenias.

Ruth DeVane wore a flesh crepe and gardenias. White flat crepe was chosen by Midge Burnham and gardenias completed her costume. Talisman roses and lilies-of-the-valley, worn by Ruth Molyneux blended beautifully with her dress of printed crepe. Muriel Davis wore a striking gown of red chiffon trimmed in tan fur and a corsage of gardenias.

:: Society ::

The week of April 4 will, socially speaking, long be remembered. Almost every day and night was filled with important dances, parties and elections, and so we present as near complete a social calendar as possible.

Monday, April 4.

Monday night, the meeting night of all sororities, was also the date of the Chi Omega election of officers. Those elected were: Kathryn Dille, president; Doris Skinner, vice president; Margaret Maxwell, secretary; Harriet Atwell, treasurer; Christine Spignul, goat mistress; and Ruth Warren, national convention delegate.

Tuesday, April 5.

The pledges of Alpha Epsilon Phi entertained the actives and alumnae at a pre-initiation party in their new rooms. On this occasion they presented the actives with a radio.

The Alpha Delta Pi goat show was presented to the active members at the home of Margaret O'Brien.

In celebration of their thirty-seventh year, members of the Phi Alpha chapter of Chi Omega entertained the alumnae chapter on the fraternity's birthday. The rooms were beautifully decorated with spring flowers and about fifty members of Chi Omega played cards or talked together. Refreshments were served at eleven and prizes were distributed. Immediately after this, the Alumnae Plaque, an award given to the most outstanding upperclassman of the year, was presented to Katherine McCallum.

Phi Alpha presented the following list of officers for the coming year: Joseph Danzansky, president; Stanford Hummelford, vice president; Herbert Sworzyn, secretary; Herman Friedlander, treasurer; Arthur Schisler, bearer of the mace; Everett Good, historian.

Wednesday, April 6

The first meeting of the Academy of World Economics took place at the Brookings Institute. Prominent educators, scholars, and diplomats met and discussed a possible forum where important economic questions will be discussed. Following the meeting a reception was given in honor of the guests.

Thursday, April 7.

The mothers of the active members of Kappa Delta met at the house for the purpose of organizing a Mother's Club.

The Newman Club gave their annual spring card party at the Roosevelt Hotel.

Friday, April 8

The annual Pan-hellenic Prom was by popular vote acclaimed the best Prom in years. Jack Baxter's Carolina Tarheels played their way to the hearts of all those who attended.

Professor Mary Quick Bowman, Professor Frances Kirkpatrick, and Dean Charles Hill were entertained at the Kappa Delta house at a luncheon in their honor.

Alpha Epsilon Phi announces the initiation of Rowna Cheffetz, Silvia Felsner, Sylvia Edlauch, Harriet Doktor, Evelyn Billosse, and Edele Gussack.

New officers installed at the Acacia House were: Ralph Haupt, venerable dean; Curtis Christianson, senior dean; Arthur Krimelmeyer, junior dean; George T. Kellogg, secretary; Harold Stults, treasurer; P. H. Lowrey, correspondent; and William Helvestine, Interfraternity Council delegate.

Saturday, April 9

The Sigma Chi Greenwich Village party, an annual closed affair, found a hundred or more people sitting around at gayly colored tables, eating and enjoying Jerry Free's music. The house, both the main floor and the basement, was decorated in true Greenwich style, and the event was extremely original throughout.

Demmie Blackstone entertained a few friends at a waffle party following the Sigma Chi party.

The pledges of Pi Beta Phi chose Fairmont School for the scene of their goat show. The theme of the show was radio, and this idea was carried out exceptionally well.

Alpha Nu chapter of the Kappa Alpha Order entertained about two hundred of George Washington's social lights at a dance at the house. Doug Porter, a member of Kappa Alpha, furnished the music. The guests enjoyed themselves to such an

Concert Thursday Afternoon Features March by Williams

Graduate Student Offers to Dedicate Composition to Student Body

A march written by Chester M. Williams, a graduate student at George Washington University, will be the feature of the first of a series of spring concerts by the George Washington University Band, to be given Thursday afternoon, April 14, at 4:45 p. m. in the quadrangle.

Director Malkus announces the following program:

March, "Our Nation's Capital," Williams.
Fox Trot, "The Wooden Soldier and the China Doll," Amsden.
Novelty, "Pep," Amsden.
Saxophone Octet, "Valse Melodie," La Forest.

Musicians: Kangas, Pickens, Reynolds, Martin, Gibbs, Lipkowitz, Maycock, and Vanderzwaart.

Mr. Williams has kindly offered to dedicate his march to the student body of George Washington University. Director Malkus plans to have this selection presented by the band on several occasions this spring, and, with the approval of the student body, the name will be changed and the composition officially adopted as the "George Washington University March."

Bad News for Co-eds

Dr. Roy N. Anderson, personnel investigator at teachers' college, Columbia University, after conducting a study of 891 women from 225 colleges from coast to coast, found that college graduates have 20 per cent less chance of marrying than their uneducated sisters, and that their salaries have a lower range than the business women's.

extent that the members arranged to have the orchestra play an extra hour.

Sunday, April 10

Alpha Delta Pi announces the initiation of Margaret Richards, Burgess Roberts, Ruth Shuch, Frances Stabler, and Frances Zeblev.

The pledges of Pi Beta Phi entertained the alumnae advisory committee at a tea. Members of the chapter executive committee were also at the tea. Each guest was presented with pink roses. Members of the alumnae advisory committee are: Mrs. George Ober, Miss Helen Taylor, Mrs. Smith Brookhart, Jr., and Miss Margaret Monk.

Delta Tau Delta elected the following officers for the next year: John Taylor Vivian, president; William Keller, vice president; Frederick Joiner, corresponding secretary; Reginald Smith, recording secretary; Thomas Eager, guide; John Fenlon, doorman.

Delta Tau Delta announces the pledging of Lawson Mackenzie and Buck Gallagher.

The officers of the Newman Club received the members of the Club at tea between four and six o'clock, at the home of Mary Mattingly. Mrs. Vivian G. Barrows, director of women's personnel guidance, was guest of honor.

COMFORTABLE as knickers and sweater

"It must be stylish, for a young lady just said, 'That's a good-looking suit, Jack!' . . . and it really is different. It's cut full and fits loosely; the shoulders are square but not padded . . . and the trousers are shorter. You can 'feel' the difference the minute you slip into the coat . . . and you can see it, too.

"I'm betting on the English Drape as the best and most practicable clothing idea since trousers were widened. Step down to Grosner's and actually see what a really different suit the English Drape is."

ASK any girl you know to name her favorite smoke—for men! Ten to one she'll say a pipe!

She's discovered—trust her bright little eyes—that it's the BIG men, on the campus and off, who welcome the mental stimulation and relaxation they get from this real man's smoke.

And if she's very wise in the ways of smokers, she'll go one better than that. She'll tell you the men who know, smoke Edgeworth!

No two ways about it, you do get a doubly satisfying smoke when you fill up your pipe with this famous old blend. It's a happy combination of choice burleys—cut long to give you a cool, slow-burning smoke. And its mellow flavor and rich aromahavemade Edgeworth the favorite pipe tobacco on 42 out of 50 campuses.

Help yourself to a pipeful next time someone pulls Edgeworth out of his pocket. Pick up the familiar blue tin yourself at any good tobacco stand. Or for a special free sample packet write to Larus & Bro. Co., 105 S. 22d St., Richmond, Va.

EDGEWORTH SMOKING TOBACCO

Edgeworth is a blend of fine old burleys, with its natural savor enhanced by Edgeworth's distinctive and exclusive elevating process. Buy Edgeworth anywhere in two forms—Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed and Edgeworth Plug Slice. All sizes, 15¢ packet package to $1.50 pound humidifier tin.

Fries' Talk Inspires Engineers at Banquet

Affair Given by Engineering Students at Mayflower April 9

Major General Amos A. Fries, U. S. Army, retired, former chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, delivered the principal address at the fourth annual banquet sponsored by the students of the Engineering School of the University, given at the Mayflower Hotel, Saturday evening, April 9. Telling of his varied experience gained in the years before he entered West Point, General Fries stressed the importance of that early experience in fitting himself to be a leader in the Engineering Corps of the Army, and in the Chemical Warfare Service. He counseled the student body of the Engineering School to consider well the thoroughness with which they must prepare themselves to do their active engineering work after graduation.

Short talks were made by Dean John R. Lapham of the Engineering School, C. H. Birdseye, president of the Washington chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers; C. L. Weller, chairman of the Washington section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers; Irvin H. Fuller, representing the Washington section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers; and A. B. McDaniel, president of the Washington Society of Engineers. President Cloyd Heck Marvin was a guest of honor, and addressed a short greeting to the engineers present.

The intention was to bestow the Sigma Tau medal for outstanding scholarship upon J. G. Barry, sophomore in the Engineering School, but the ceremony was postponed due to his illness. Barry carried 34 hours of work during the school year 1930-1931, and attained an "A" grade in all except one hour of work.

Otis L. Turner, senior student in the Department of Mechanical Engineering, was chairman of the banquet committee. He was assisted by George Jackson, Harold G. Fries, F. P. Lyle, F. M. Hoffmann, and G. C. Thom. Entertainment was furnished by Frances Williams and Blanche Arison. James H. Platt, formerly a member of the faculty of the department of Mechanical Engineering of the University, and now superintendent of construction in the Bureau of Indian Affairs, Department of the Interior, was toastmaster. More than 100 students, graduates, and members of the faculty of the Engineering School were present at the banquet.

Working Students Rapped by Author Charging Hypocrisy

Writer Cites Easy and Special Considerations as Reasons for Students' Unnecessary Jobs

One more well known writer has succumbed to the lure of the American college as an ever verdant field for his pastime. Most of the usual contentions being rather used up, the writer has turned to a new angle and is revealing the college student as a hypocritical "Horatio Alger," unnecessarily working while going to school, in order to win "mingle envy and special consideration."

Parental apathy is blamed for the insidious American habit of the worthy sons of middle class fathers attempting to do two jobs at once and not being successful at either.

The safety belt of the writer is given with the statement that there are real jobs for collegians who have to work their way through school. Then, this soothing salve out of the way, he adds that too many men work only to "tickle their sense of duty or pay the bootlegger."

With every college man using a job as a means to get some kind of special dispensation, the situation of the working collegian is offering a problem to the educators.

Then with this situation so nicely brought about by the writer, he proceeds to name his characters to fit in with the rest of the plot. College professors are not so much instructors as arbiters of moral worth. Whoever tries, means well, is therefore a scholar. But then, is swabbing floors worthier than tending furnaces? Does selling Fuller Brushes rank with tuning pianos? It is no longer a question of appendicitis being offered as a substitute for mathematics; it is a question of Jack-of-All-Trades being translated Baccalaureus in Artibus, and giving Hercules a Ph.D.

Wanted! Brilliant Plan to Raise Money For Garage to Solve Parking Problem

One of George Washington University's most troublesome problems, for the student body at least, is the question of where to park the car when one arrives at 21st and G two minutes before roll call. Some professors object strenuously to tardiness, but none seem to take into consideration the problem of parking. The worn look on the faces of their students ordinarily attributed to the intensity of study is really due to the energy expended in hunting a place for the car.

Whether you are a car owner or not, you have no doubt felt the seriousness of this question. The solution lies not in more parking space on

Symphony Club Sponsors Silver Tea to Contribute Money for Kinder Fund

The Symphony Club invites all students to attend a silver tea for the Kinder fund, to be held in the Chi Omega rooms, April 20 from 4 to 8 o'clock. Guests are to contribute as much as they wish to the fund.

Members of the club will present a musical program at the tea. Lucy Frank will play several piano selections, and Morris Deutsch will repeat some of the Hungarian folk songs which he played at the International Students' Society dance.

A concert given by the Cincinnati String Quartet was attended by the Symphony Club Saturday afternoon in the Congressional Library.

All College Women Chisel Less Grades Than College Men

New York (IP)—A survey just completed by the New York University Daily News, undergraduate publication, reveals that, in the opinion of the university's professors, college girls do less "chiseling" for high grades than do college men.

Dr. William D. Glenn, head of the university's Washington Square College department of psychology, declared that the question of "chiseling" marks was entirely a matter of the instructor's viewpoint.

"Professors can be divided among three groups when marks are being considered," he declared. "There is the first group that offers tests to the students, and thus gives them their true marks."

"Then there is the second group consisting of professors who are prey to the ways of wily women and so give out marks much higher than deserved by the fair co-eds."

"Finally the third group consists of professors who understand womanly ways and just lean back listening intently to what the woman student has to say. They usually mark the co-ed lower than she deserves so that they will not appear prejudiced."

Professor Frederic Ernst, head of the Washington Square College French department, declared that women students have no special advantage in trying to get high marks.

"Girls as a rule are more interested in languages than boys and consequently get higher grades," he said.

Professor Homer A. Watt, head of the English department at the Washington Square College, said that "although girls sometimes seek higher marks than they deserve through their charms, they meet with very little success."

Scrimmages End Spring Football Training Period For Old and New Men

The annual spring football training program of Coach Jim Pixlee came to an end last Thursday when the eager candidates completed three weeks of drill with a series of scrimmages.

Among the 45 men on the squad have been a large number of new men who have not played either varsity or freshman football. These prospects have been given special attention by the Colonial crew of coaches in the intricacies of the system of football Mr. Pixlee employs. Fundamentals in both tackling and blocking have been stressed throughout the short conditioning period.

Although quite a few cases of sore backs, sprains, etc., have been reported, no serious injuries have been sustained by any of the men.

Women Debaters Close Season With Trinity Meet

Women's debating came to an interesting close Saturday evening, April 9, when outstanding members of the team debated with members of Trinity College. The squad, which consisted of Clara Critchfield, Ruth Molyneux, and Bertha Kauffman, had for its subject: "Resolved, That capitalism is preferable to socialism as economic order." The question had been debated on Tuesday, April 5, with the State Teachers' College from Kalamazoo, Mich., by Louise Feinstein, Clara Critchfield, and Bertha Kauffman.

Members of the debating squad for this year were: Clara Critchfield, Ruth Molyneux, Elizabeth Reeves, Louise Bruce, Hilda Hayes, Louise Feinstein, and Bertha Kauffman.

Hatchet Reporters Learn Things New As Jean Harlow Gives Them Interview

Being a True Account of Two George Washington University Students' Visit to See Screen Doms' Greatest Blonde, And What Issued Thereupon

By LESLIE HAYNES

"Blondes prefer gentlemen," said Jean Harlow, the "platinum" blonde. Your Hatchet reporter listened quaking. He was in Jean Harlow's dressing room, getting an interview. Before him, in one of those Hollywood dressing rooms, reclined his and thousands of other college men's screen idol. She smiled at him.

"College men are just grand." If it hadn't been for her deep blue eyes and charming politeness, one George Washington University man would have toppled off his seat. But at any rate he felt better. He had another Hatchet reporter with him. You see, just one college man isn't enough when you're going to see Jean Harlow. You go in twos, for better protection.

"Do-do you like f-f-football?" asked the other awed reporter, gazing enraptured at a head of full-bobbed glorious hair, and wondering what good studying calculus would ever do him.

"I love it," smiled the gracious lady. "I go to a college game every time I get a chance."

On a Hatchet Interview Right about here your reporters were warming up to their job. It isn't so bad to sit in a dressing room behind stage and have a beauty with long black eyelashes smiling at you and telling you things. Maybe you do have to rush all over town to get permission to view the goddess, but isn't it worth it? The reporters nudged each other.

Besides, you don't have to wear asbestos to see Jean Harlow. She doesn't "sizzle." She may "sizzle" on the screen, but in real life she's just a charming girl. If she would break out crying, you would feel as though you would like to comfort her. Maybe if she had broken out crying, this issue of the Hatchet wouldn't have gone to press.

Mrs. Romney Addresses Drama Appreciation Club

Members of the Drama Appreciation Club heard Mrs. Lenore Romney, who is the alumni sponsor of the club and a member of the Drama Guild, at their regular meeting Wednesday night, April 6.

Mrs. Romney reviewed "The Good Fairy," the play presented last week at the National Theater.

Arrangements have been made for members of the club to attend "The Devil Passes," Saturday, April 16.

Cue and Curtain Club to Produce Royall Tyler's First American Play at Wardman Park April 29, 30

maining before the presentation at Wardman Park, ticket sales have begun and faculty members and students desiring advantageous locations are urged to fill out and mail at once the accompanying blank to the Business Manager of Cue and Curtain in care of the Bursar of the University, as the demand for seats from local organizations and individuals shows promise of unusual proportions.

Constance Connor Brown, director of "The Contrast," is rapidly whipping her talented cast of student performers into dress rehearsal form. Every one of the players in the dozen or so leading roles has amply demonstrated his or her ability on the stage in the past and the production bids fair to add many laurels to the cupboard of Cue and Curtain.

In the key role of Col. Manley will be Hazen Shea, one of the principals in the play which won second place in the recent D. C. One-act Play Tournament, and opposite him is cast Ruth Molyneux, Troubadours' leading lady and veteran of any number of Western High School and other local productions.

Cue and Curtain members who proved their acting skill in "The Queen's Husband," with which the club scored an artistic success at Wardman Park last November, are also in the chief roles. There are Joe Danzansky, tried and true comedian, whose antics have earned nothing but praise; Sol Orleans, with a background of two years on the professional stage; Frank Westbrook, star of three former plays presented by the organization; Amanda Chittum, who won most favorable comment as the princess in "The Queen's Husband"; and Michael Greenberg, also a veteran in theatrical fields.

Newcomers to Cue and Curtain ranks who show unusual promise are Virginia Wilson and Helena Cooke, both being cast prominently in "The Contrast," the former as a coquette, the latter in a comedy role opposite Danzansky.

That the beauties of Colonial times are being done rightly is attested by the fact that the four young women in the leading roles are easily as attractive as any to be found in the University. And no preference is being shown any one color of hair, for two are blondes, one a brunette and the fourth is a redhead.

"The Contrast" is a fascinating play, for its writing was inspired by Royall Tyler's chagrin at the loss of his sweetheart, Abby Adams, daughter of President John Adams and sister of President John Quincy Adams, to a rival whose vicer of foreign culture made him seem superior "by contrast" to the hero until the many qualities of the latter's character had a chance to be appreciated.

Graduate Students' Paper Given in Algebra Section Of Mathematical Meeting

Professors James H. Taylor, Francis E. Johnston, and Florence E. Mears attended the meeting of the American Mathematical Society held in New York recently. Two especially interesting papers were presented by Professor W. A. Hurwitz of Cornell University and Professor Einar Hille of Princeton University. Professor Richard Courant of the University of Göttingen, considered one of the most outstanding mathematicians of the present time, addressed the Society. Professor Courant is a visiting professor at Princeton this semester.

George Washington University was represented by Abraham Sinkov, a graduate student in the Department of Mathematics, whose paper was the first given in the Section for Algebra and Arithmetic Friday morning. Mr. Sinkov took his Bachelor of Science degree at the College of New York in 1927, and his Master's at Columbia two years later.

Seminar-Conference Of Spanish America Offered for Summer

Fourteen distinguished lecturers, including prominent professors, government specialists, and members of learned foundations will conduct a seminar-conference on Hispanic-American history and civilization, to be presented as a feature of the Summer Sessions of the University this year.

The seminar will be given in the six weeks' term, meeting two hours daily, the first hour devoted to lectures, and informal discussion will fill the second half of the period. Professor A. Curtis Wilgus will direct the course and will give introductory and concluding lectures.

The men and women who will deliver the lectures in the course are Dr. Samuel Guy Inman of Columbia University, Professor A. F. Whitaker of Cornell University, Dr. Sylvanus G. Morley of the Carnegie Institute, Professor Mary W. Williams of Goucher College, Dr. William R. Manning of the State Department, Dr. N. A. N. Clevon of the University of Pittsburgh, Professor Clarence F. Jones of Clark University, Dr. Constantine McGuire of the Institute of Economics, Miss Heloise Brainerd of the Pan American Union, Professor Cecil Knight Jones of the George Washington University, and Senator E. Gil Borges of the Pan American Union.

Former Havanan Professor To Talk on Cuban Politics

Hermilio Tortell-Villa, former professor of Cuban history at the University of Havana, will be the guest speaker at the next regular meeting of the Swisher History Club, which will be held this evening at 8:30 in Corcoran Hall 24. Mr. Tortell-Villa's talk will be on the "Politics and the Student Situation in Cuba at the Present Time." A business meeting will precede the lecture at 8 o'clock.

Philippine Club Plans Schedule for Debate Team

Organization of a debating team, with John Barbers as captain, was completed at the last meeting of the George Washington Philippines Club. A tentative schedule is now being made to debate against the Speakers' Congress of the University. The subject of the debate will be announced later. John J. Barbers was recently elected president of the club. The other officers are: vice president, C. Nagae; secretary, A. D. Diaz; treasurer, F. Irrewere, and sergeant-at-arms, Felix Pinina.

Columbian Women Hear Legislatrices

Representatives Owen and Kahn Speak at Twenty-fourth Annual Banquet

Two hundred and fifty university women assembled at the twenty-fourth annual banquet of the Columbian Women of the George Washington University on Friday night, April 8, at the Chevy Chase Club.

Congresswomen Florence P. Kahn of California, and Congresswoman Ruth Bryan Owen of Florida, were the speakers. Others at the speakers' table were Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin, Mrs. William D. Mitchell, Mrs. William E. Borah, and Mrs. W. W. Husband.

University girls served as ushers. They were Betty Jacobs, Dorothy Niess, Kathleen Watkins, Doris Troth, Mary Harrington Lord, Dolly Tschiffely, Leah McArthur, Betty Rees, Anne Burger, Evelyn Eller, Peggy Evans, Ruth DeVane, Clara Critchfield, Dorothy Albert, Betty Reeves, and Anna Bonner. Presiding the dinner, the officers of Columbian Women and the honor guests received in the parlors of the club. Miss Harriet Garrela, first vice-president, headed the line in the absence of Mrs. William J. Mallory, president.

Greetings from Mrs. Mallory, read by Miss Garrela, opened the banquet. Following this, Mrs. Joshua Evans, Jr., of the Board of Trustees of the University, chairman of the program committee and "toastmistress" of the evening, was introduced. She introduced the honor guests as "lady doers" in the words of their young son.

A group of dances was presented by Miss Marian Chase and Mr. Lester Shafer, accompanied by Mrs. George Cornell.

Drawing Silhouettes Is Novelty Pastime Of Crandall's Class

Entirely releasing from their brains the thoughts of stiff old problems, Professor Norris I. Crandall's proteges have taken up a new pastime—silhouetting. And what masterpieces they have produced! Charley Jumper seems to be enjoying a summer afternoon at a tennis court. Bill Sisson looks like a hard night, and that silhouette of Al Minno was done by a real artist but he was no friend of Al's.

Librarian Announces Additions for March

New Reference Books Include Interesting Works on All Subjects

John Russell Mason, acting librarian of the George Washington University Library, announces a number of additions have been made to the library during the month of March.

The new books are on the subjects of anthropology, botany, chemistry, classical languages, economics, education, engineering, English, fine arts, geography, German, government, history, home economics, philosophy, physical education, psychology, public speaking, romance languages, sociology, and zoology.

Among the most interesting of the reference books received is that in the American Universities and Colleges, edited by J. H. McCracken for the American Council on Education located here in Washington.
Dean William C. Van Vleet, of the University Law School, is the author of "The Administrative Control of Alumni," one of the new books among those acquired by the Law Library. Other new books acquired by the Law Library are "Cases on Titles to Real Property" by Ralph Aigler; "Crimes and its Repression" by Gustav Aschaffenburg; Volumes 55 to 113 of the Connecticut Reports; "Treatise on Torts" by Thomas Cooley; "Crimes: Its Cause and Treatment" by Clarence Darby; "Outline of Copyright Law" by Richard De Wolf; "Stock Watering" by David Dodd; "Criminology and Penology" by John Gilin; "The Judicial Process in Tort Cases" by Leon Green; "Federal Anti-Trust Laws Symposium" by Milton Handler; "Patents" by Roger Hoar; "International Legislation" by Manley Hudson; "Treatise on Law of Collateral Security and Pledge" by Leonard Jones; "The Public Control of Business" by Keezer and May; "Cases on Federal Anti-Trust Laws" by James McLaughlin; "Public Regulation of Competitive Practices" published by the National Industrial Conference Board; "Howard's Practice Reports," Volumes 12 to 67 of the New York Reports; "Penology in the United States" by Franklin Russell; "Swope Plan, The Business Bureau" and "Digest of Legal Opinions" published by the United States Veterans Bureau.
The Medical Library is the recipient of 446 volumes of bound journals, 62 volumes of re-bound books, 387 volumes of a gift collection from Mrs. Charles William Richardson, and 98 volumes of a gift collection from Dr. Daniel Kerfoot Shute.

Pharmacy Students Hear Dr. Hogstadt

"The Changing Order of American Pharmacy" Subject of Talk

"The Changing Order of American Pharmacy" was the subject of a talk given by Dr. Anton Hogstadt, chairman of the National Pharmacy Week movement, before the students of the George Washington Pharmacy School, Wednesday, March 27.
Dr. Hogstadt stated that we are all custom built institutions, and that it is an almost impossible task to examine the theories of yesterday with an open mind and to "overthrow the baggage of the past." As an example of this statement he cited several instances where the American public has clung to its belief in medicines which were of absolutely no value.

Stressing the fact that original thinkers are considered crazy in the minds of non-original thinkers, Dr. Hogstadt concluded his remarks.
He then showed slides of a prescription pharmacy in St. Louis, which is claimed to be the most modern and efficient of its type in the country today.

Translator Enrolls In Graduate School

Degree of Master of Political Science Is Sought by Raul d'Eca

In 1921 a young Portuguese paid his first visit to American shores. He had three years of English to his credit, learned in a Portuguese lycée. He had been taught to say "How do you do?" The Americans said "So long." There was nothing to do but learn to translate this carefree language of the United States. This task of translation strangely enough became his future work, for last year, older and more adept at understanding and making himself understood in his rolling speech, Raul d'Eca, the young Portuguese, was named the Chief Translator for the Pan-American Conference and has still continued his document translations.

d'Eca recalls an interesting boyhood. In Portugal the secondary school system is called the lycee and corresponds to our high schools. The boys and girls enter at the ages of seven and eight and after the first two years start preparation for university work. Aside from the early age of entry, the lycee is conducted in very much the same manner as the American schools.

Association football, corresponding to our game of soccer in which the ball cannot be touched by the hands, causes just as much excitement down there as football does up here. They split their throats with yelling and toss the sombrero of the person next to them onto the field just as enthusiastically as any American, even though they don't have as many names to call the referee.

The sport costumes are the most modern of the picturesque costumes worn. The men wear the usual white ducks and the women wear the costume characteristic of the tennis player. In the southern part the men are the peacocks of the country with their wide sombreros, corded trousers, vivid sashes and pastel shirts. In the North the women are the more beautifully dressed.

d'Eca fell in love and married a Washington girl, Florence Babbitt, the daughter of a prominent doctor here. They were married in New York City in 1927 and a few days later sailed for Brazil, which country d'Eca claims as his second birthplace. Owing to the ill health of Mrs. d'Eca they returned in two years to Washington to establish their home.

Last February, Raul d'Eca enrolled in the University in order to obtain his Master of Political Science. He received his Bachelor of Humanities at Springfield University in 1925. He likes American people and American customs, but hopes someday to say "So long" to America and return to Brazil.

Michigan Daily Will Continue Publication

Withdrawal of Subscriptions Will Amount to $3,600 Annually

Ann Arbor, Mich. (AP)—Despite the withdrawal by the University of 900 subscriptions from the Michigan Daily, apparently as a protest against the student paper's editorial policy, the University of Michigan publication will continue, the student managers have declared.

The university authorities annually had taken the 900 subscriptions for distribution among the faculty. Several recent issues of the paper have been branded by Dr. Alexander G. Ruthven, president of the University, as "baseless and objectionable." They contained criticism of the conduct of the American Legion members at its recent national convention in Detroit, denounced the dean for statements concerning student government and chided professors for obtaining reprints of college textbooks.

The loss to the paper by the withdrawal of the subscriptions will amount to $3,600 annually, although the editors have estimated that a large number of the faculty will now purchase their own papers.

In a recent issue the paper said: "The editors of the Daily wish to state at this time that they never have, and never will, permit the paper to be guilty of sensationalism. The Daily has the best interests of the University of Michigan at heart, but does not believe that such interests can be fostered by suppression of facts."

The Daily will continue to print news of interest to students, the editorial said.

An old campus tradition has been broken by a freshman at the University of Michigan. Trying to work up an unusual news story, this young woman walked through the front door of the Michigan Union Men's club. This feat has never before been accomplished by a woman.

Intramural Debate Schedule Announced

Delta Sigma Rho Cups Awarded to Winning Sorority and Fraternity

The sororities and fraternities debating for the Delta Sigma Rho cups will take part in elimination contests in Corcoran Hall at 8:15 p. m. on April 14 according to the schedule published below.

The women will debate the question, "Resolved: That married women in Government positions whose husbands are gainfully employed should be replaced by qualified persons now unemployed." The contestants are to prepare debates for both sides of the questions as the present assignment of sides holds only for the first round of the contests.

Professor Harry Goddard Roberts announces that he is placing on reserve, in the University Library, Debater's Handbooks which touch on these subjects. In addition much help may be secured from newspapers, periodicals and personal interviews.

The schedule for the women's debates will be as follows:

Debate Number One—Phi Mu, affirmative; Delta Zeta, negative. Corcoran Hall 15.

Debate Number Two—Sigma Kappa, affirmative; Zeta Tau Alpha, negative. Corcoran Hall 17.

Debate Number Three—Alpha Delta Theta, affirmative; Phi Sigma Sigma, negative. Corcoran Hall 21.

Debate Number Four—Phi Delta, affirmative; Alpha Delta Pi, negative. Corcoran Hall 25.

Debate Number Five—Kappa Delta, affirmative; Chi Omega, negative. Corcoran Hall 22.

Debate Number Six—Pi Beta Phi, affirmative; Alpha Epsilon Pi, negative. Corcoran Hall 24.

Public Library Lists Interesting Lectures

W. G. Purdum Addresses Students in Library Administration

Students in the Division of Library Science who are enrolled in the course in Public Library Administration under Professor Elizabeth A. Lathrop, have been enjoying a series of lectures given by the staff of the District of Columbia Public Library during the past few weeks.

W. G. Purdum, chief of the Acquisition Department, discussed the work which is entailed in ordering, checking, and taking care of book material.

Dr. George F. Bowerman, chief librarian, gave an interesting account of the responsibilities and duties of a librarian.

Miss Julia H. Laskey, chief of the Catalog Division, in a very concrete manner, illustrated the problems which confront the cataloger who indexes the material in a library.

The work of a branch library as a unit and as part of a system was set forth by Ralph L. Thompson, librarian of the Mt. Pleasant Branch.

On April 5, Miss Emma Hance, director of Reference Work, told of the many interesting questions and kinds of information the public library is requested to supply, and of the efforts of the library worker to have material available.

Other lectures to be given concern the work of the circulation department, library publicity and extension, and the library budget.

The concluding lecture will be presented by Miss Clara W. Herbert, assistant librarian, on "Library financing."

All of the lectures have been given in the Library Science Room on Tuesdays at 5 p. m.
